the illusion of reality was conceived during my tenure as director of the newly established division of information science and technology at the national science foundation in 1979 1981 as a partial response to the need for a textbook for students both in and out of government that would provide a comprehensive view of information science as a fundamental constituent of other more established disciplines with a unity and coherence distinct from computer science cognitive science and library science although it is related to all of them driven by the advances of information technology the perception of information science has progressed rapidly today it seems well understood that information processing biological organisms and information processing electronic machines have something basic in common that may subsume the theory of computation as well as fundamental parts of physics this book is primarily intended as a text for an advanced undergraduate or a graduate introduction to information science the multidisciplinary nature of the subject has naturally led to the inclusion of a considerable amount of background material in various fields the reader is likely to find the treatment relatively oversimplified in fields with which he is familiar and perhaps somewhat heavier sailing in less familiar waters the theme of common principles among seemingly unrelated applications provides the connective tissue for the diverse topics covered in the text and i hope justifies the variable level of presentation some of the material appears here for the first time this edited collection presents the latest cutting edge research in the philosophy and cognitive science of temporal illusions illusion and error have long been important points of entry for both philosophical and psychological approaches to understanding the mind temporal illusions specifically concern a fundamental feature of lived experience temporality and its relation to a fundamental feature of the world time thus providing invaluable insight into investigations of the mind and its relationship with the world the existence of temporal illusions crucially challenges the naïve assumption that we can simply infer the temporal nature of the world from experience this anthology gathers eighteen original papers from current leading researchers in this subject covering four broad and interdisciplinary topics illusions of temporal passage illusions and duration illusions of temporal order and simultaneity and the relationship between temporal illusions and the cognitive representation of time the compelling new book by richard shotton author of the choice factory every day people make hundreds of choices many of these are commercial what shampoo to pick how much to spend on a bottle of wine whether to renew a subscription these choices might appear to be freely made but psychologists have shown that subtle changes in the way products are positioned promoted and marketed can radically alter how customers behave the illusion of choice identifies the 16½ most important psychological biases that everyone in business needs to be aware of today and shows how any business can take advantage of these to win customers retain customers and sell more richard shotton author of the acclaimed the choice factory draws on academic research previous ad campaigns and his own original field studies to create a fascinating and highly practical guide that focuses on the point where marketing meets the mind of the customer you ll learn to take advantage of the peak end rule the power of precision the wisdom of wit and much much more you simply cannot afford to miss the illusion of choice jean baudrillard is one of the outstanding representatives both of french poststructuralism and postmodernism because of radical criticism it was not possible for him to establish a logically coherent theoretical system the philosophical aspects of his work are specifically merged therefore into a critical asystematic fragmentarism which is the subject of this work from the critique of the political economy of the sign through critiques of rationalism reality progress truth history to the theory of simulation baudrillard s specific para concepts fatal strategy symbolic exchange seduction hyperreality pataphysics etc are constantly fragmentarily present in the development of his thought these concepts are baudrillard s attempt at disengagement from modern philosophy and his new unsystematic postmodern view of reality in general in the analysis of binary metaphysical oppositions reality simulation subject object knowledge seduction history end radical irradical nihilism metaphysics god pataphysics baudrillard is radically exclusive through the arbitrary preference of one over the other concept his ideas it is possible to conclude that these dualistic antagonisms are also paradoxically compatible in his system this compatibility is very close to the irrational mysticism of this thinker this book is a clear and lucid presentation of this unique brand of postmodernism to english speaking scholarship presents the case for human mortality the finality of death but lamont argues the illusion of immortality is an affirmative vision not a negative one
