in the late 1970s a new academic discipline was born translation studies we could not read literature in translation it was argued without asking ourselves if linguistic and cultural phenomena really were translatable and exploring in some depth the concept of equivalence when Susan Bassnett's Translation Studies appeared in the New Accents series it quickly became the essential introduction to this new subject. Susan Bassnett tackles the crucial problems of translation and offers a history of translation theory beginning with the ancient Romans and encompassing key twentieth-century structuralist work. She then explores specific problems of literary translation through a close practical analysis of texts and completes her book with extensive suggestions for further reading. Twenty years after publication the field of translation studies continues to grow. Updated for the second time, Susan Bassnett's Translation Studies remains essential reading for anyone new to the field.

A selection of 44 papers out of the 163 presented at the Translation Studies Congress which was held in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Institut für Dolmetscher und Übersetzer Ausbildung in Vienna shows how translation studies is moving away from purely linguistic analysis into LSP, psychology, cognition and cultural orientations. The volume is divided into sections reflecting the focal subject areas at the congress: translation history and culture, interpreting theory and training, terminology and special languages, teaching and training in translation. Also included are papers from a special workshop including interdisciplinary research projects from Vienna. Of the articles, 25 are written in English, 16 in German and 3 in French.

As a meaningful manifestation of how institutionalized the discipline has become, the new handbook of translation studies is most welcome. It joins the other signs of maturation such as summer schools, the development of academic curricula, historical surveys, journals, book series, textbooks, terminologies, bibliographies and encyclopedias. two then outlines a detailed rationale for that positioning this in turn supplies a framework for the case studies comprising part three where a number of exemplary issues are analysed and contextualized texts and modes of translational behaviour are situated in their cultural setting and textual components are related to their texts and then also to the cultural constellations in which they are embedded all this leads to part four which asks what the knowledge accumulated through descriptive studies of the kind advocated in the book is likely to yield in terms of both the theoretical and the applied branches of the field all in all an innovative thought provoking book which no one with a keen interest in translation can afford to ignore
