a classic account of democracy's crisis of legitimacy the age of party democracy has passed argues peter mair in ruling the void the major parties have become so disconnected from society that they no longer seem capable of sustaining democracy in its present form first published in 2013 ruling the void presciently observed that the widening gap between citizens and their political leaders posed a crisis of legitimacy for the governing class and was fuelling populist mobilizations against it europe's political elites had remodelled themselves as a homogeneous professional class withdrawing into state institutions that offer relative stability in a world of fickle voters meanwhile non democratic agencies and practices proliferated not least among them the european union itself mair weighs the impact of these changes and offers an authoritative assessment of the prospects for popular political representation today not only in the varied democracies of britain and the eu but throughout the developed world with a new introduction by chris bickerton author of the european union a citizen's guide this book provides an analysis of key approaches to rule of law oversight in the EU and identifies deeper theoretical problems the modernist poetry of Wallace Stevens is replete with moments of theorizing Stevens regarded poetry as an abstract medium through which to think about and theorize not only philosophical concepts like metaphor and reality but also a unifying thesis about the nature of poetry itself at the same time literary theorists and philosophers have often turned to Stevens as a canonical reference point and influence in the centenary year of Wallace Stevens's first collection Harmonium 1923 this collection asks what it means to theorize with Stevens today through a range of critical and theoretical perspectives this book seeks to describe the myriad kinds of thinking sponsored by Stevens's poetry and explores how contemporary literary theory might be invigorated through readings of Stevens she has no name she has her knives her training her halo the first and second give her the ability to defeat the opponents she is pitted against each month the third frees her from pain and fear from any kind of emotion at all everything is as it should be until fear love pain anger happiness desire guilt love when a newly named Kit escapes the sanctuary after killing her best friend the last thing she needs is another knife in her hand or Ryka the damaged beautiful blond boy whom she refuses to let save her the sights and sounds of Freetown are new yet one thing is familiar the matches the only difference where the blood in the sanctuary landed only on the Colosseum floor Kit will quickly learn that a river of red runs through Freetown's very streets without her halo the inhabitants of Freetown consider her saved but is that really the case the reality of her old life is paralyzing would Kit be better off free of the guilt associated with all the blood on her hands or is the love of one boy worth living through all the pain
