the present work attempts a clarification of the question bearing on technology and of its essence in the philosophy of Martin Heidegger in view of this our initial task will consist in examining the origins of modern technology which Heidegger describes in the primordial experience of being as cpvo u together with the human manners of comportment to this the primordial manifestness of being we will begin in part one by attending primarily but not exclusively to the subjective dimension allowing thereby the manner of the historical progression of being that is its transforming self showing to stand in the background this procedure seems to us not merely appropriate with respect to our purpose as a whole but moreover corresponds to the matter at issue for being in its own progression is essentially self-concealing which in turn brings to prominence the subjective in union with the varied modes of the being of beings termed beingness in conformity with Heidegger's interpretation of metaphysics there can be but little doubt that being itself persists throughout in presence only as absence thus we will trace out this manner of being's presence in absence and the respective dominating human manners of relatedness to being's beingness that is we must observe the transformation of original vo6v or i syelv tsxvlj into platonic i6slv j6s y

this monograph deals with the locative alternation in German a change in the argument structure of verbs like spray and load like most argument structure changes the alternation is both productive and constrained new forms may be derived but not from all candidate verbs this raises a learnability problem how can children determine in the absence of negative evidence which verbs participate in the alternation the locative alternation in German tries to answer this question by providing an in-depth analysis of the conditions that verbs must meet in order to participate in the alternation most importantly transitive verbs must allow speakers to presuppose the existence of their theme argument this condition requires the theme to be incremental so that it can be conceived of as nonindividuated or unbounded when the verb is used in the alternative syntactic frame the nonindividuation hypothesis splits locative verbs into two types mass verbs like spray and count verbs like load and it predicts that children acquire the alternation first for mass verbs whose theme must be a substance and so is nonindividuated by default support for this hypothesis is provided in the empirical part of the book which also provides evidence against claims in the literature that children acquire the alternation by drawing on an innate affectness linking rule this monograph proposes a minimalist phase based approach to the derivation of coordinate structures utilizing the operations copy and match to account for both the symmetries and asymmetries of coordination data are drawn primarily from english german and dutch the basic assumptions are that all coordinate structures are symmetric to some degree in contrast to parasitic gap and many verb phrase ellipsis constructions and these symmetries especially with ellipsis allow syntactic derivations to utilize copy and match in interface with active memory for economizing with gaps and assuring clarity of interpretation with derivations operating at the feature level troublesome properties of coordinate structures such as cross categorial and non constituent coordination violations of the coordinate structure constraint as well as coordinate ellipsis gapping rnr left edge ellipsis are accounted for without separate mechanisms or conditions applicable only to coordinate structures the proposal provides support for central assumptions about the structure of west germanic
