a theorist who believes that the homeric poems are the growth of four changeful centuries must present a definite working hypothesis as to how they escaped from certain influences of the late age in which much of them is said to have been composed we must first ask to what manner of audiences did the poets sing in the alleged four centuries of the evolution of the epics mr leaf as a champion of the theory of ages of expansion answers that the iliad and odyssey are essentially and above all court poems they were composed to be sung in the palaces of a ruling aristocracy the poems are aristocratic and courtly not popular footnote companion to the iliad pp 2 8 1892 they are not volkspoesie they are not ballads it is now generally recognised that this conception is radically false these opinions in which we heartily agree there never was such a thing as a popular epic were published fourteen years ago mr leaf however would not express them with regard to our iliad and odyssey because in his view a considerable part of the iliad as it stands was made not by court bards in the achaean courts of europe not for an audience of noble warriors and dames but by wandering minstrels in the later ionian colonies of asia they did not chant for a military aristocracy but for the enjoyment of town and country folk at popular festivals footnote iliad vol i p xvi 1900 the poems were begun indeed he thinks for a wealthy aristocracy living on the product of their lands in european greece were begun by contemporary court minstrels but were continued vastly expanded and altered to taste by wandering singers and reciting rhapsodists who amused the holidays of a commercial expansive and bustling ionian democracy footnote companion to the iliad p ii we must suppose that on this theory the later poets pleased a commercial democracy by keeping up the tone that had delighted an oldland owning military aristocracy it is not difficult however to admit this as possible for the poems continued to be admired in all ages of greece and under every form of society the real question is would the modern poets be the men to keep up a tone some four or five centuries old and to be true if they were true to the details of the heroic age it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that some part of the most primitive iliad may have been actually sung by the court minstrel in the palace whose ruins can still be seen in mycena
